

HOKUKANO-UALAPUE COMPLEX

Along Hawaii Route 45, Molokai, Ualapue vicinity

These discontinuous sites form one of the most important and impressive archeological complexes in Hawaii. Six temple platforms and two fishponds are testaments to the architectural and engineering achievements, and to the political and economic power, that had evolved on Molokai between A.D. 1500 and 1778, when contact with the West was made.
